

INTERVIEW CALLS IN CONGRESS FOR PALMER INQUIRY

Declares That Department

Reveal Public Scandal.

CITES BIG TRUST CASE

Declares Attorney-General
Is Hopelessly Incompetent to Deal With Situation.

GOES BACK TO WAR TIME

Asserts That as the Alien Property Custodian He Wasted
Vast Fortunes.

Samuel Untermyer delivered last night a sweeping attack upon the policy of the Department of Justice toward trades combinations and urged an immediate Congressional investigation of Attorney-General Palmer's present office and of the administration of his former post as Alien Property Custodian.

Characterizing the newly launched Federal drive against building trades combinations as an "appearance of eleventh hour repentance," he warned against placing too much confidence in it, despite the fact that it is headed by two "able and experienced prosecutors" in William Rand and Isidore J. Kresel.

Mr. Untermyer's speech was delivered at a dinner tendered to Nathan Hirsch at the Hotel Commodore in recognition of Mr. Hirsch's services as chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Protesting.

Francis G. Caffey, the United States Attorney for the district and local representative of the Department of Justice, was present.

Mr. Untermyer was speaking of the accomplishments of the Lockwood committee, which he has been serving in the capacity of volunteer chief counsel, and he said "one of the most surprising results of the disclosures of the committee is the fact that almost every avenue of industry is clogged and cluttered with criminal combinations in restraint of trade."

Charges Incompetency.
"I place the main responsibility for this monstrous condition squarely at the door of the Department of Justice," he said. "The record for the past eight years is one of incompetency, apathy, and worse, one that is unspeakably bad."

Mr. Untermyer related the manner of procedure adopted by the Attorney-General against the so-called cement trust, referring to his promises of drastic action and his announcement that he would ask $1,500,000 for the purpose of proceeding against it and the final filing of a civil suit in the Supreme court, referring to his promise of drastic action and his announcement that he would ask $1,500,000 for the purpose of proceeding against it and the final filing of a civil suit in the Supreme court.

On matters of this kind, he said, the Lockwood committee has gathered a mass of evidence against the cement trust which it has turned over to the Department of Justice. "What we have seen learned by the strong suspicion that they have nothing of value excepting what we have furnished," he said.

"It will be interesting to learn what has become of the most important evidence by Congress for the prosecution of this and other trusts."

Mr. Untermyer criticized the Federal authorities for not urging prison sentences for the members of the sand and gravel ring who were fined in the Federal Court yesterday, saying that the case of these men was not at all similar to that of the members of the most notorious members of which were fined at his own instance after they had furnished evidence involving other price boosters.

"But had as the record of the Department of Justice in the enforcement of the anti-trust laws," he said, "the hopeless and humiliating blundering and inefficiency of the Attorney-General in dealing with these combinations is almost a brilliant success as compared with his accomplishments in other directions, such as the administration of the Alien Property Custodian act, the sedition laws and the internment of alien enemies."

"There has never been a governmental department, national or State, so recently in the history of the United States as to have been subjected to such a painstaking investigation as are those of the Alien Property Custodian and the Department of Justice. The vast powers and patronage of these great offices are said to have been used, and it is the general belief that they were used, to build up a political machine which, however, fortunately failed of its purpose."

Extravagance Alleged.
"I have no direct legal evidence, but if a fraction of what comes to me is true, and I believe much of it to be true, such an investigation will disclose to the world a series of the most mortifying scandals that has ever befallen our country. Fortunes in patronage are believed to have been squandered among favorites, in the form of lawyers' and directors' fees taken out of the pockets of citizens and aliens whose properties were seized or unfortunately came under the control of the government. There is just one decent loophole of escape for us, and that is by a merciless exposure of the facts by Congress."

"I believe also that an investigation of the activities of the Secret Service, of the Department of Justice before and during the war will develop the fact that it did little except to rely largely upon reports of the British Secret Service that were gathered by that Government in our country before we entered the war and to pay off its grudge and play its game and induce us to intern the unfortunate who had incurred its enmity before we entered the war."

"One of our first acts after the declaration of peace should be to ascertain what extent we have been benefited by our own recent German citizens for their hostility to Great Britain when we were a neutral country and when these people were supposed to have the right to their sympathies on either side of the conflict as between Great Britain and Germany."

EDSEL FORD OPERATED ON.
Detroit, Jan. 18.—Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, underwent an operation for appendicitis late yesterday, it became known today. At the hospital it was announced his condition was favorable.

BURNING NEWSPAPER AWAKENS WATCHMAN

Warning Comes in Time to Let Him Escape.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 18.—The ill wind that blows somebody good sometimes even blows up an elevator shaft.
Frank French, watchman, fell into a comfortable snooze while reading a newspaper. Unlike John D. Rockefeller, Frank didn't relax when he fell asleep and drop the newspaper. He still clutched it.

Fire started at the bottom of the elevator shaft beside which Frank slept and he was awakened by the flames. The burning newspaper singed Frank's fingers, woke him up and he was just able to escape before his exit was cut off by the fire.

Frank now knows that a newspaper is always a useful commodity.

MALINDA, 360, BEATS

Attempt to Pinch Her Single-handed Fails.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 18.—Malinda Ogden, 360 pounds, scored a clean beat over Lieut. Archie Holt, amateur wrestling star of the Richmond police force, when the officer tried to arrest her single handed for alleged traffic in drugs.

A hurry call brought reinforcements and the prisoner was walked to the city jail, only to cause further embarrassment.

She wouldn't fit the cell doors, so she sat outside until released on bail.

HUSBANDS LIABLE FOR 'DAMAGES' TO WIVES

Classed as Employers by Woman Legislator.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 18.—Husbands would be placed in the status of employers, with their wives the employees in their homes and permitted to recover damages for injuries received while performing household duties, under the terms of a bill introduced in the Kansas House of Representatives today by Mrs. Minnie J. Grinstead, Representative from Seward county.

The measure was the first to be offered by one of Kansas' two women Representatives.

BOOZE FOR 'SENATORS' IN MAIL POUCHES

Bootlegger Says They Are His Regular Customers.

United States Senators have their booze delivered in mail pouches to avoid detection, according to George Winters of Washington, who told the police for violation of the motor vehicle act.

Winters, who told the police he is an ex-policeman, had a pouch in an automobile in which he was driving. When confronted by post office inspectors he told his story. He is being held pending further investigation with four others arrested at the same time.

Winters says the regular trips to the offices and residences of Senators with booze concealed in mail pouches.

WOMAN BANDIT ASKS A KISS OF VICTIM

He Gives Up Valuables, but Seals His Lips.

SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.
CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—And now Chicago has the kissing woman bandit. Stanley K. Lasky, a salaried man, told the police that a woman bandit held him up at Thirty-first and State streets early today. Fording him in the ribs with a long knife, she made Lasky give up his purse, $3, and his watch.

After robbing Lasky the woman bandit said: "I always demand a kiss from each victim. Now kiss me, dear boy." This was too much for Lasky, who fled.

FLAMES IN WHISKERS ARE HARD TO EXPLAIN

So Owner of Burned Store Is Promptly Arrested.

The Fire Department of Babylon, L. I., headed by Chief Arink, was fighting a fire late Monday night in a store in 79 River street, Patchogue, owned by Joseph Rottman, when Rottman appeared and began wringing his hands, crying out that his entire fortune had been lost.

"How did it catch?" asked Chief Arink.
"I don't know," said Rottman, "I haven't been in the store for three days."

"Then how did you singe your whiskers?" asked Chief Arink.
Rottman put his hand to his flowing whiskers, and when one side of them crumbled in his hands he turned to run. Chief Arink arrested him, however, and yesterday he was held in $1,500 bail. Firemen said the floor of the store had been saturated with gasoline and that Rottman had $1,500 insurance on the place.

CRIME EVEN TO OWN
ANY HIGH HEEL SHOE

Utah Law Being Drafted
With Aid of Women's Clubs.

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 18.—The text of the bill to prohibit high heeled shoes in Utah was made public today at a meeting of representatives of women's clubs in conference with legislators at the Capitol.

A person found with a pair of such shoes is subject to a fine of from $25 to $500 for the first conviction and from $500 to $1,000 for every additional offense, and imprisonment of from thirty days to one year. It is drawn to take effect on July 1, 1922.

The height of heels permitted is one and a half inches.

CHILLICOTHE DENIES IT'S ANYBODY'S TOWN

Claimants Bob Up for Ground
Upon Which It Stands.

CHILLICOTHE, Jan. 18.—Residents of this town of 13,000, founded more than a hundred years ago, have been called upon at least once every decade to deny rumors, assertions and even actual claims by alleged heirs that the ground upon which it stands is a part of the estate of a "Jacob Baker."

Search after search of county and municipal records, which date back to the time when Chillicothe was a wilderness, has failed to reveal any "Jacob Baker" as owner or lessee of any land hereabouts, but still claimants make themselves known.

Frequency of the inquiries and claims has led to much surprise on the part of old-timers as to what is back of it all. Many theories have been advanced, but none has furnished an official or satisfactory solution.

DIES IN POVERTY, ART DEALER HAS A $10,000 TOMB

Samuel Collins, Said to Have Been 90, Once Owned
Great Estate.

BUYER FOR MORGAN

Was Famous as Speculator
in Paintings and De Luxe Editions.

IN OBSCURITY FOR YEARS

Landlady in Newark Found
Him Near Death and Sent Him to Hospital.

Twenty years ago Samuel Collins was known throughout the East, wherever men bought and sold fine paintings, as an art dealer of rare judgment and a salesman who sometimes made as much as $50,000 a year; but ten days ago, when his landlady found him unconscious in a little furnished room in East Kinney street, Newark, he was simply a helpless old man without a cent in the world, unless she counted the eighty-seven cents which his bank book showed.

The landlady sent Collins to the City Hospital, where he died last Thursday. She never had heard that he had been an art dealer. To her he was nothing more than a gentle, quiet old fellow who was a few days late with the room rent now and then. For two days the body lay at the morgue unclaimed.

Out of the hundreds of friends Collins had at one time only a few remained. One of them, Manuel Roberts of 13 Madison avenue, Manhattan, was notified of his death. Mr. Roberts took the body to Stroudsburg, Pa., last Saturday. It was buried there Monday in a $10,000 mausoleum which Collins built for himself and his family when he was at the height of his prosperity and owned the finest estate in Stroudsburg.

The most colorful story of Collins was placed together yesterday by Mr. Roberts, by Willis Dowdson of Maplewood, N. J., and Frederick Keer, an art dealer of 917 Broadway street, Newark.

Said to Be Ninety Years Old.

At the hospital Collins's age was given for the records as 75, but these friends say he was much older than that. They insist that he was at least 85 years old, and possibly 90.

The former associates of Collins and the men who used to buy pictures from him remembered that Collins was a striking man in his day; that he could talk a man into spending his last $10,000 for a picture that meant nothing to him; that he could discuss any subject with authority and with a certain ease and grace.

He was remembered by Collins as an exceedingly well dressed man. He used to wear a big top hat, and his clothes were always neat. He had a heavy black mustache when he was younger, and his eyebrows were dark and heavy. His friends also remember that he smoked black cigars of a brand all his own—cigars so strong that, though he had one going all the time, one of his acquaintances could smoke them.

Collins was the seventh son of an English family. He came to the United States when he was a boy. His father was a merchant who left $25,000, but not a penny of it was left to the son in America.

Correspondent in Civil War.

During the civil war Collins was a correspondent for a New York newspaper. He was a reporter for a short time after that, and then he became a salesman for a publishing concern handling de luxe editions. Then he became an art connoisseur and collector.

It is estimated that Collins handled a total of $15,000,000 in his art transactions. At one time he was employed by J. P. Morgan to collect works of art.

"Thirty years ago Collins bought Charles Lin, a valuable piece of property on top of the mountain near Stroudsburg. There he spent large sums of money on a lake, driveways and improving the grounds. It was the show place of the city. Ten years later he bought what is known as the Singmaster property in Stroudsburg. He made it one of the most beautiful estates in the city. It is now a Y. M. C. A. home."

About fifteen years ago he bought an estate in East Stroudsburg and laid it out in avenues and parks, with many arches and gateways. He called it "Collins Terrace." Then the flint got him. He was unable to finance the work to completion and the property was foreclosed. About all that he retained was the family plot, with the $10,000 mausoleum.

Collins married Miss Clara Church of New York. They had three children, all of whom died in infancy. When he was 70 he adopted a daughter, Lillian, who died when she was 14 years old. "Collins Terrace" was to be his memorial.

Collins's widow is in an insane asylum near Allentown, Pa. She has been there for several years.

Tammany Boss Says He's Too
Healthy to Retire Now.

Charles Francis Murphy told a score of leaders yesterday afternoon that he had no intention of going to Europe as he had planned, and that he was not leaving Tammany Hall. He had just returned from French Lick Springs, where he had been on a long vacation.

"What is there to these reports that you are preparing to retire from politics?" he was asked.
"Nothing to them at all," he replied. "Any basis for the speculation?"
"None at all. I'm too healthy."

"But you are going to retire some day?"
"Oh, yes, when my beard gets way down here (pointing to his knees). It hasn't started to grow yet."

MISS BORI IS BACK, FROZEN, BUT AGAIN A NIGHTINGALE

Soprano Returns With Voice Restored After Absence of Five Years From Metropolitan, and Will Resume Her Old Favorite Roles at Once.

It might be expected that the first thing Miss Lucretia Bori would say when she returned to her apartment in the Ritz-Carlton yesterday, after an absence of five years, was that her voice had been restored to her and that she would appear in Boheme on January 28, at the Metropolitan Opera House. But she wasn't. Her first announcement to New York's music lovers, who remember her as one of the favorites of some years ago, was this:

"I come back to be frozen!"
"But your voice?"
"I think now that I am frozen," said Miss Bori. "My brother Vincenzo, who comes with me, he also is frozen. You will see Vincenzo, how he sits on the radiator."

This was true. Vincenzo Bori, undignified but comfortable, squatted on his heels on top of the radiator, with his fur coat still wrapped about him.

"What she says is true," said Vincenzo. "I lost my voice when she was frozen. The operation on your sister's throat," began the visitor.
"I will answer no questions until I thaw out," he said. "Thank God for steam heat!"
Eventually, however, both the soprano and her brother thawed out. Vincenzo descended from the radiator, and Miss Bori told about her voice and the operation on her throat to remove a growth which five years ago threatened to wreck the career of one of the Metropolitan's favorite sopranos. New York opera lovers will recall her as one of the most adorable Florio in "The Love of Three Kings." And right now the two topics most discussed over tea tables in musical circles are the return of Bori and the convalescence of Caruso. Physicians say that the voice of the latter will not be affected by his illness, and now New York had the word of Miss Bori herself that she will sing here again.

"My voice not only has come back," she said, "but I am told that it is much better than ever—much fuller, much clearer and much rounder, I am told."

Miss Bori left New York when the trouble in her throat prevented her singing and went to Spain and South America, where she took a long rest. She then went to New Jersey, where she was performed by Dr. Della Vadosa. Since then reports have reached New York that her voice had been restored, and Mr. Gatti-Casazza of the Metropolitan returned to New York last summer and said that he had heard her sing at Monte Carlo and that her voice was better than ever.

TO MISS WHITEFORD

Financier's Son Joseph Made
Former Actress Chief Beneficiary in Instrument.

Miss Dorothy Lucille Whiteford, 23 years old, daughter of John H. Whiteford, a prosperous toy manufacturer, of 172 West Seventy-ninth street, falls heir to upward of $60,000 through the will of Joseph J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, which was filed yesterday in the Surrogate's Court. The reason for the bequest to Miss Whiteford is not explained in the instrument. Relatives say that she and Mr. Ryan had been friends for many years and that she was at his bedside when he died.

The will, which was executed November 24, 1919, disposes of an estate estimated at $60,000. A bequest of $100,000 is made to Mrs. Nannie Morris Ryan, the widow. Mr. Ryan explained that his "ample provision has been made for her support and the support of our children during her lifetime by the separation agreement made with Mrs. Ryan on dated 8th May 1915." Bequests of $5,000 each are made to a son, Joseph J. Ryan, Jr., and a daughter, Eleanor M. Ryan.

Miss Whiteford is to receive $10,000 and the residue of the estate, which, in the opinion of her attorney, John Robinson, will total about $50,000, is included in the will. The will also includes bequests for $25,000 and what properties Mr. Ryan received through the will of his mother, Mrs. Ida M. Ryan. Joseph A. Ryan, attorney, of 51 Chambers street, filed the will. Mortimer L. Shuford of 64 Wall street is named as executor.

Miss Whiteford is at present visiting friends in Rochester, Pa. She formerly was an actress, appearing in the cast of "The Royal Vagabond" two years ago and of another musical comedy. The brother yesterday volunteered the information that Mr. Ryan had been a frequent visitor at the Whiteford home and that he and Miss Whiteford were the best of friends. The brother could not say when or under what circumstances Mr. Ryan had met his sister, but was certain it was not through her theatrical activities, which ceased two years ago. However, that the problem of the John M. Welch, booking agent for the Selwyn theatrical interests, is married to one of Miss Whiteford's sisters. The young woman entered the theatrical profession through Mr. Welch.

Thomas Fortune Ryan could not be reached, and it was said in his behalf that he did not care to make any statement in regard to his son's will. It was learned, however, that the Ryan family has been anxiously looking forward to the filing of the document and has been watching the Surrogate's office for the appearance. A lawyer representative of the family said to have appeared there every day for the last month. The present whereabouts of Mrs. Ryan, the widow, is not known. The will specifies that the residue of the estate, and beneath this written in ink, is the notation:

"Valley View Farm, Ridge Road, Washington, D. C."

INDUSTRY DISCUSSED IN TOWN HALL DEBATE

Capital and Labor Represented in Open Forum.

Capital and labor stood side by side last night on the platform of the Town Hall and discussed the problem of "working together for justice and efficiency in industry." It was an amicable discussion, sometimes treated seriously by such speakers as James Speyer and Major George Haven Putnam and sometimes touched upon lightly, as by Herbert L. Bridgman.

Major Putnam, secured a suggestion that labor organizations be compelled to incorporate as a means of checking them. F. H. La Guardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, favored a declaration of war on the children of New York who are threatened every day by a 35 cent quart of milk, he declared, and the poor man must have enough money to see that his family is nourished. The other speakers were Princess Cantacuzene and Hugh Frayne of the American Federation of Labor, George W. Wickersham, president of the Economic Club, under whose auspices the last of the opening ceremonies of the new building were held, presided.

Man and Woman Victims of Explosion Destroying Bayonne Building.

A man and a woman lost their lives yesterday in a fire that destroyed a building at Avenue E and Forty-third street, Bayonne, N. J., which housed the Cello Film Company and the University Film Company. Twelve persons were at work in the building when it exploded in some unexplained manner. There followed a series of explosions, which shook the neighborhood and sent the burning films flying in all directions.

Miss Ethel Suckow, 24 years old, of 623 Avenue E, was killed when she jumped from a second floor window to the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which run alongside the building. The body of a man believed to be that of Arthur Post, 21 years old, of 923 Broadway, was found on the first floor after the flames had been extinguished. Both Miss Suckow and Post were employed by the Universal Film Company, which occupied the second floor.

According to the Bayonne police the fire started in the plant of the Cello Film Company, which was engaged in the work of renovating old films for the Universal company. It is thought a film was laid on a radiator and that it exploded. The blaze spread rapidly to other rolls of films. George A. Swayze, foreman for the Cello company, heard a cry of "fire" and ran through the place ordering every one to get out.

Swayze said afterward that Miss Martha Birnbaum, a bookkeeper, became panic stricken and refused to open a door which would permit them to the place to escape. The foreman said he overpowered the young woman and carried her to the stairs. In doing so he was struck and injured. He was taken to the hospital and is now recovering. The other children burned, all taken to hospitals, were Sylvia Slater, 6, 1342 Park avenue; John Nugent, 3, 80 West 163rd street; Mary Mancell, 7, 231 East 167th street.

Homeless men looked to rescue missions and lodging houses for shelter. At the Bowers Mission 340 men crowded themselves with soup, bread and coffee and received tickets to neighboring lodging houses. The Salvation Army Hotel, with capacity for 600, had all berths occupied, but the Municipal Lodging House, capable of accommodating 1,000, had only 198 men, 20 women and 3 children.

In the intense cold a police patrol of the lower bay was begun last night in search for the body of Sidney Pennell, a shipping clerk of 623 Jefferson place, The Bronx, who disappeared Sunday after he had started out from Canarie in a small sailing boat.

The effects of the last two days died down to a breeze last night. One of the goals of the cold was the freezing of the Hudson as far south as Tarrytown, the ferry thence to Nyack being suspended with all other river traffic. Thus there probably will be a large ice crop, despite the fear of the prophets of a mild winter.

Forecasters James H. Scarr is inclined to believe this day will be cloudy, with a minimum temperature of about 10.

The sweeping cold that possessed the city yesterday caused the deaths of three persons—a man by freezing and a woman and a child by burning. Three children were seriously burned as they crowded about stoves at their homes when they came in from play and their clothing was set afire.

Mrs. Marcella Corrick, 60, was burned to death while other tenants in 406 Second avenue watched helplessly. James Gallagher wrapped her in a blanket, but the woman died before the arrival of medical aid. It was found she had fallen from a chair against a stove.

Veronica Blake, 6, daughter of Patrolman Millard Blake of the Alexander avenue station, in The Bronx, died last night in Lincoln Hospital. Her father is a widower, and she had been left at home with three other children.

The girl fell against the stove and her clothing caught fire. Thomas O'Neill, a tenant, came to her aid. The family live at 302 East 142nd street.

The body of a man about 45 years old found frozen on the ice of West End Brook at the foot of Monroe street, Passaic, N. J., was unidentified last night. There were no marks of violence.

The other children burned, all taken to hospitals, were Sylvia Slater, 6, 1342 Park avenue; John Nugent, 3, 80 West 163rd street; Mary Mancell, 7, 231 East 167th street.
